Story of Impact

This year, the More Moments More Memories Foundation awarded over $25,000 in grants to help people access cancer clinical trials with their caregivers at their side. One of our grants helped Wendy, who was diagnosed with an aggressive type of multiple myeloma in 2016. Commonly used therapies didn’t work, and in 2017, she qualified for a stem cell transplant, which was followed by a nine month remission. By April 2018, her cancer became active again. In early 2019, she qualified for Car-T Cell therapy in a clinical trial in New York City, nearly 2,000 miles from home. Wendy’s husband and caregiver, Dennis, shared:

“More Moments More Memories was there for us. We received a grant from MMMM that made it financially possible for us to be patients in the clinical trial. After staying at the hospital for more than two months following the procedure, we traveled to NYC throughout the year. The trial has been magnificent. Wendy now has no traceable cancer. It could not have been done without your financial travel-related blessing. Being with Wendy at every turn whether the hospital, countless meetings with doctors, or painful bone biopsies has been immeasurable and satisfying. The support from MMMM took away lots of the potential stress for the amount of travel we have done, and the huge financial cost. Things like this are crucial for healing from cancer. MMMM has been an invisible advocate for every turn of every corner.”
